TWU Bargaining Units Meet in Dallas Today to Negotiate “Me-Too” Clauses with AMR

Five TWU-Represented Bargaining Units that Accepted American Airlines’ Offer Last Month Will Negotiate Improvements as a Result of More Favorable Terms Offered to Pilots

Following Me-Too Talks, Maintenance and Stores Workers Seek to Meet with Company Negotiators

Dallas – Negotiators for five Transport Workers Union bargaining units, representing American Airlines’ Fleet Service Clerks, Dispatchers, Ground School Instructors, Maintenance Control Technicians, and Simulator Technicians will meet in Dallas later today to negotiate improvements to the offers accepted on May 15.

The May offers included “me-too” clauses that stated that any further improvements in valuation or profit sharing received by other work groups would be extended to bargaining units that consented to accept the company offers. These so-called “me-too” clauses became active when AMR improved its offer to the pilots’ union last week.

Plans to restart negotiations for the two TWU work groups that did not accept earlier offers has been communicated to AMR. Negotiators for the Maintenance and Stores bargaining units are expected to meet with the company after the “me too” talks conclude.

Transport Workers Union of America (TWU) represents 200,000 workers and retirees, primarily in commercial aviation, public transportation and railroads, including 26,000 AMR employees. The union is an affiliate of the AFL-CIO.
